MAYOR ALARMED BY WATER SUPPLY

Norfolk Executive Declares Immediate Action Is Necessary.

Norfolk, Va., July 23.—"Few people have any idea how scarce water is becoming in the city lakes," said Mayor James G. Riddick last evening after returning to the city from a visit to the pumping stations, where he spent the afternoon inspecting the present source of supply and going over the watershed.

"The situation is just as bad as I believe I have ever seen it," said the Mayor, "and I think immediate action on the part of the Council is absolutely necessary. Just suppose it should become necessary to suspend pumping water into the city for twenty-four hours. Wouldn't that be a blow to Norfolk's prestige as an up-to-date municipality?"

"Granting the Council takes up the matter at once, it will be over a year before any water supply which may be purchased would become available, as it takes time to handle vast propositions like this. Quite a number of features have to be considered before final action is taken, the most important of which is that of securing the money required."

Council Should Act, Mayor Declares. "Engineering problems will have to be worked out, and after all of these have been disposed of it will take considerable time to make the water purchasable available. I think the Council should lose no time in arriving at some conclusion in the matter at the earliest possible moment."

The Mayor reluctantly discussed the situation at the lakes, intimating that it would prove beneficial if members of both of the city's lawmaking bodies who are responsible for furnishing an ample supply of water would observe conditions for themselves and not depend so much upon the reports of others.

Special Message Is Sent to the Council. A special message addressed to the Council by the Mayor yesterday afternoon recommended that the balance remaining from the appropriation for the Water Commission be used for securing a new water supply to be placed under the supervision of City Engineer Brooke, whom Dr. Riddick believes is fully competent to handle the situation.

Minister Lashes One-Child Families, Cigarette-Smoking Heiresses and Others.

Chicago, July 23.—The Rev. C. H. McMan, Progressive pastor of the speaking at the Oceanview Methodist camp meeting yesterday about social conditions, said:

"This one-child business in the family is dangerous. The child doesn't have to give up its toys and help bring up the other children. The result is the development of a selfish, contrary and mean disposition."

"We curse dukes, lords and 'ignobles' who have carried off American heiresses to Europe. Never mind, they have caught people whom it is good to be rid of."

"Food poisoning in one part of the world and people starving in another is a tragedy."

"I would like to pound the devil out of men who, in order to pile up millions enough to give their cigarette-smoking daughters to equally worthless but titled foreigners, are willing to prevent our securing cheap transportation."

"Many people who have only the inheritance of automobiles, cattle and dogs."

Women Boycott Hyde.

James Hazen Hyde has got into trouble because he excluded women from the Fourth of July banquet given by the American Chamber of Commerce. This led to a boycott of the chairman of the committee of managers. He pleaded lack of space as an excuse. The women retort by saying that the elegant Hazen delights to tell and to listen to risky stories such as would not be told in the presence of women.

In this connection a prominent member of the Lyceum Club tells a tale on General Grant. One of his guests said: "Mr. President, as there are no ladies present, I'm going to tell an off-color story. But there are gentlemen present."

The more aggressive women say that the Knight of the Violets feared their presence might stop a bottle. The outcome of the situation is that the chivalrous James Hazen Hyde is being boycotted by the intellectuals of our women.

Wealthy Move to Brussels.

Several wealthy Frenchmen are following the example of Walter Winans, of Baltimore, by taking a domicile in Brussels. The well-known horseman has shaken the dust of England off his feet because he is subjected to a high income tax. He says that he does not wish to pay in taxes one-twelfth of his yearly income for the privilege of living in England. Hence he has taken a residence in Brussels, where taxes are low. The miniature Paris heavy income tax has, he says, forced wealthy men are resorting to Brussels plan. Mr. Winans has sold his horses and also Surrenden Park, his place in the County of Kent. Previous to settling down in King Albert's capital he will shoot bears in Russia.

Mrs. Moore's Novel Dinner.

Our opulent American widow, Mrs. William Moore, always strikingly original, took her latest dinner party out to the gambling casino at Englewood-Bains. Dining within full view of the games and making bets between sallys of wit were the order of the evening. The occasion by finishing the evening with fireworks and illumination.

It was the most fashionable party even seen at the gambling suburb, for Mrs. Moore's guests numbered the Grand Duke Paul, Prince of Greece, Prince of Sweden, Prince Hohenzollern, Prince of Monaco, Prince de Basso, Prince de Rohan. The only commonplace note of the evening was that the cotillion was led by the overworked Andre de Fougere.

The three characteristics of the new closed season of 1911 were the originality of Mrs. Moore's dinner party, the mingling of great women with demi-mondaines at the ball given by the dressmaker Polrot, the numerous foreign guests who were present.

For the Paris season, a Russian season, an Italian season, an English season and a German season.

PLAN TO DESIGN WOMEN'S DRESSES

Committee of Painters, Men of Letters and Women of Fashion Formed.

James Hazen Hyde Causes Trouble—Mrs. Moore's Novel Dinner.

BY MARQUIS DE CASTELLANE. (Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch.)

Paris, July 23.—A committee of painters, sculptors, decorators, physicians, men of letters and women of fashion has just been formed for the purpose of designing feminine costume. For it has long been felt that the frocks of our females when devised by dressmakers have become freaks. And yet if our artists of the new committee be well chosen we may look for some amusing results.

Jean Paul Laurens, the painter of medieval and cloistered scenes, would dress all our women in the sombre garments of a convent. Alexander Harrison, the eminent sea painter, would clothe every American girl in garments of the deep blue of the Mediterranean. Chelmsford would put Napoleon's hats on every mother's daughter of them. Detaille would dress them in the robes of the roving soldier. Ridgeway Knight, who paints pretty peasants in gardens would make flower girls of them all.

The Marquis de Wentworth, the painter of Popes, would have all our women of fashion wear tiaras. Frederick Brageman, the painter of ponderous women looking at mirrors, would paint the simple women who are nothing since, would give them all the tragic air. Tanner, the painter of biblical scenes, would robe them all like the women of the Bible. Mrs. Clifford Harney, the painter of the nude, would present a Parisienne beauty so undraped that the French Anthony Comstock, would have to intervene. The cure seems worse than the disease.

American-Imperial Marriage.

An interesting marriage and American connection is escaping the notice of the chroniclers of daily history, because the bride's identity is veiled under the simple name of Kirkpatrick. Yet Miss Kirkpatrick, who has married Count Joseph de Beynac, is a grandniece of the ex-Empress Eugenie, and a niece of General and Mrs. Edward Kirkpatrick, of Closebourne, so known to the American colony of Paris.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick is a Brooklyn woman, and the owner of an expensive ranch in California. In order to understand the beautiful bride's imperial connection, I may mention that the Empress Eugenie's mother was Donna Maria Manuela Kirkpatrick, daughter of William Kirkpatrick, a Scotch-Irish gentleman, who was American consul at Malaga. Miss Kirkpatrick, who is a grandniece of the ex-Empress Eugenie, and a niece of General and Mrs. Edward Kirkpatrick, of Closebourne, so known to the American colony of Paris.

VALUES OF TRIFLES IN COST OF MILEAGE

To Make Up for Wasted Penny, Ton of Freight Must Be Hauled Two Miles.

Chicago, July 23.—A new method of demonstrating to employees the importance of saving small things is set forth by the Pere Marquette Railroad in the current issue of the railroad employees' magazine. Where several other roads have shown their employees how to save, the Pere Marquette has saved, the Pere Marquette presents a table showing the cost of various small articles commonly wasted in terms of mileage for a ton of freight.

This shows that every time a postage stamp is used needlessly the company must haul a ton of freight 3 1/2 miles. Other simple examples are: a nail, 1/2 mile; track spike, 2 miles; one lamp chimney, 10 1/2 miles; station broom, 35 miles; lantern, 100 miles; track shovel, 90 miles; 100 pounds coal, 20 miles; one gallon engine oil, 50 miles.

CONVICT KEPT THE FAITH

Went Unattended on Journey to Ask Parole, Failed, and Returned.

Raymond T. Baker, of the Nevada State Penitentiary, who, theory that convicts can be treated in a humane fashion and will reciprocate has made him known all over the country, gave a demonstration of his honor system recently that astonished many officials and citizens.

Warden Baker came to this city to attend a meeting of the Board of Pardons. Among the applications for a parole was that of J. R. Noble, who is serving a life term for killing a man. The board was interested in the plea he had put in and the warden's account of his good behavior, and a request was made that the man appear in person. The officials, in spite of their knowledge of Mr. Baker, expected to see the prisoner brought in by an armed guard. There was great surprise when Noble walked alone into the hall.

It was explained that under the honor system Noble had been working with a gang of men, mostly sentenced to long terms, on a road. Over these supposedly desperate criminals only one guard is placed, and he is unarmed. Sometimes the men have been strung up for two miles at their work. They sleep in tents at night, and their guards sleep with them. Not one has tried to escape. When Noble was wanted here the warden told the foreman to lend him a horse, and it was on this he came to the city and rode back. Any man in the gang would be trusted in the same way.

OLD TRICK ON AGED FARMER

Paris With $4,000 and Receives a Brick in a Box.

Franklin, Pa., July 23.—Isaac Onspaugh, an aged farmer of Crawford county, was swindled out of $4,000 this week. He and a man representing himself to be a former Congressman, John Sturtevant, started out to look at Onspaugh's farm, and met a stranger, who exhibited a large sum of money. The stranger introduced a card game, at which Onspaugh and "Sturtevant" each won $5,000. When "Sturtevant" showed the stranger that he could have paid the bet if he had lost, Onspaugh went to his bank and got $4,000 to do likewise.

This and the stranger's $5,000 were placed in a box, which was supposed to be given to Onspaugh. The latter found later that he had gotten a box with a brick in it.

The swindlers have escaped.

C. S. A. GENERALS NOW SURVIVING

Lists and Whereabouts of Officers Who Served the South.

New York, July 23.—Special correspondence of the New York Evening Post, from Washington, has the following story on the surviving generals of the Confederacy:

Brigadier-General Marcus J. Wright, who is one of the surviving generals of the Confederate Army, now employed in the War Department, has for years kept the record of the 425 generals appointed by President Davis. According to his record, only twenty-five of this number are now alive. His list, which is believed to be accurate, is as follows:
